Please take the time to read the questions carefully, as incorrectly completed applications may take longer to process and you may be required to provide further information. If you require assistance completing the form, please contact the Commissioner of Residential Building Disputes (contact details available at www.consumeraffairs.nt.gov.au).

Technical inspections only relate to defective work, not incomplete work.

Please choose which date is relevant to your circumstance

The effective period for allegations of defective work is the total of the construction period, and the defect period

For allegations of defective work and where the work has not been completed (construction period)

Specify the start date relevant to your circumstances	Date	Evidence attached
If there is a contract for the work – on the day the contract for the building work was entered into
If there is no contract for the work – on the day the building permit is granted for the work
Specify the end date relevant to your circumstances	Date	Evidence attached
If an Occupancy Permit was required - the date on which the Occupancy Permit was granted
If an Occupancy Permit was not required - the date on which all declarations required under the Building Act were made i.e. builders declaration
If the work has not been completed within the two years permitted by the building permit (which does not include any extension to the original building permit) the day on which the first building permit expired

This information is required to calculate the defect period (1 year non-structural and 6 year structural), that follows completion of the work (the construction period). The defect period starts immediately after the last day of the construction period.

Note, that if the current owner becomes aware of the alleged defective work within 30 days before the end of the defect period, the defect period is extended for 30 days after the current owner became aware of the defect.

Example:

If an Occupancy Permit was required for relevant residential building work, and was granted on 1 July 2013 –

- the consumer guarantees in relation to non-structural defects would expire on 2 July 2014; and
- the consumer guarantees in relation to structural defects would expire on 2 July 2019.
